

Foundation Funds Video to Help Raise Awareness of How NCPDP and Pharmacists Are Filling Gaps in Patient Care

The NCPDP Foundation has just launched a new public service video that shows how NCPDP is supporting pharmacist-led COVID-19 testing...and hopefully soon, vaccine administration. The intent of the video is to raise awareness among policymakers and industry leaders of how NCPDP is working with pharmacists to help fill gaps in patient care. Testing for COVID-19 and vaccine administration is just one, highly relatable example, and a jumping off point for a broader discussion of how NCPDP and pharmacists can help address pressing healthcare challenges.

Foundation donors made it possible to produce this video. And they also made possible multiple research projects that are now beginning to prove how NCPDP Standards can make healthcare better and safer. Some findings are expected to be released this year.

The Foundation needs your support! In particular, we are looking to expand our 1977 Society, a group of donors committed to supporting the vision and purpose of the Foundation through monetary donations totaling $1,977 or more within a calendar year. This donor group, named in recognition of the year NCPDP was incorporated, was established in May 2019. If you attended Annual Conference or work group meetings in 2019, you may have seen members wearing their 1977 Society lapel pin.
