

Telecom Re-envisioned, An Overview

Description:

In March of 2021, the NCPDP Foundation funded an effort to migrate the NCPDP Telecom standard to a syntax consistent with current technology. Working closely with NCPDP staff and a Technical Advisory Committee JSON was selected. The outcome of this project is a JSON representation of the Telecom content (F6) in a way that is supported by current tooling and skill sets. Needs identified by NCPDP members, such as extensibility and improved code set and reject handling have been added. In addition, for alternative connectivity protocols and enhanced security options are possible.

Join us as we touch on key areas of the project; stakeholder engagement, analysis of options available, the development and testing approach, and finally information about the model itself.

Learning Objectives:

Upon successful completion pharmacists and pharmacy technicians should be able to:

1. State why the project to create a new format for the National Council for Prescription Drug Program's (NCPDP) Telecommunication (Telecom) Standard was undertaken
2. Identify the data notation format used in the new Telecom Standard
3. Identify two design goals of the new Telecom Standard
4. Identify two major differences between the existing Telecom Standard and the new Telecom Standard
5. Name a feature of the new Telecom Standard that enables implementers to extend the information that can be conveyed
